This Knife stands without a rival in the markets of the WORLD to-day. Many have attempted to imitate it, but in every instance

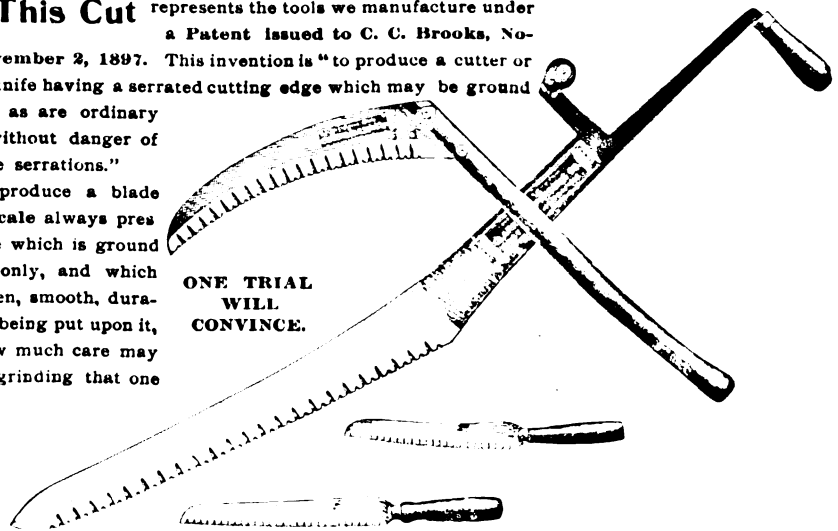

FAILURE is the record. We shall continue to keep its qualities of material and workmanship up to its high standard

This Cut represents the tools we manufacture under a Patent issued to C. C. Brooks, November 2, 1897. This invention is "to produce a cutter or knife having a serrated cutting edge which may be ground on each side, as are ordinary knives, and without danger of destroying the serrations."

Thus we produce a blade without the scale always present on a blade which is ground on one side only, and which prevents a keen, smooth, durable edge ever being put upon it, no matter how much care may be taken in grinding that one side.
